

Henning Moelle

Henning Moelle is a litigation partner of the international law firm Taylor Wessing practicing law as a German attorney in Frankfurt, Germany. Henning represents clients from various industry sectors in commercial disputes. He is also recognised as a leading product liability lawyer of Germany. He has acted as national and international counsel in major international product liability cases such as the Baycol litigation for Bayer and the international thalidomide litigation.