

Last year's inaugural Product Liability Roundtable was a smash hit, and it's back!

This full-day specialty roundtable, sponsored jointly by the Product Liability Committee and Drug, Device and Biotechnology Committee, creates a forum for in-house counsel and outside counsel to learn together and discuss new developments in the product liability arena. This full-day program is reasonably priced at $595 for outside counsel and complimentary (but registration required) for insurance executives and corporate counsel. Registration details can be found here.

Last year's event sold out very quickly, so if you would like to participate, please register early to secure your spot.

SERVING OTHERS

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

As I write this last President's Message for the Docket, I am sitting in a hotel room in Nashville, TN preparing to attend an IADC Regional Meeting to celebrate the contributions and service of Third Year Board Member Jessie Zeigler. It has gotten me thinking about how much our members serve others. It is hot here, compared to Rhode Island. But in the words of Yogi Berra (yes, I am a Red Sox fan quoting a legendary Yankee, but he shares the same nickname with my mom so I get a pass), "It's not the heat, it's the humility."

Over the last two years, I have had the extraordinary privilege of representing this organization at meetings all over the world. I have listened to podcasts of our members being asked WHY IADC? I think, I may have found the answer that cuts across all others: The humility of our members. My college roommate's dad was a long-time high school teacher and he used to say, "Good attracts good."

This note is focused on the third prong of our Strengthening Community theme for this past year: Serving Others. I have witnessed inspiring work by the lawyers in this organization who are extremely reluctant to seek accolades for the work they perform outside of their offices and courtrooms. One of my goals was to have members "spotlight" their pro bono or charitable work. As an organization, we are not braggers and I think many felt that the charitable work they do is not worthy of note. On the contrary, I think it is one of the most impressive things about our organization and it is what drew me to devote more time to the IADC than any other professional association.

An examination of our commitment to Serving Others must necessarily start with our IADC Foundation. This year, again, we have donated more than $100,000 to causes that support the rule of law, both in the US and abroad. We support Justice Without Borders, the global resource for anti-corruption education and youth empowerment, to educate young people around the world about the rule of law and rejection of corruption. We support the National High School Mock Trial Championship and of course, still support one of our flagship charities, iCivics. This year at our Midyear Meeting we renewed our commitment to iCivics and to our members supporting this initiative in their home states. We provide boots on the ground support. The Foundation also explored partnering further with the United Nations Development Project to provide resources to judges around the world who are trying to fight corruption in their countries and who need international support. We met with UN representatives in Istanbul in September and continue to seek ways to improve the lives of those most in need around the world.

Since so many members were reluctant to spotlight themselves, we asked our Podcast Committee to highlight the work so look for these episodes to drop soon on IADC Speaks. One member worked for the family of a prematurely born baby to make sure that their medical coverage was there for them. Another, former Air Force veteran, does pro bono work for veterans seeking benefits for service-connected injuries and illnesses. A third, just as a small sampling of examples, serves as a Court Appointed Special Advocate to work for the protection of children in the child welfare system and report to Courts on what is in the best interests of these children. My hope is that as we highlight these stories of selfless work and humility, that others will continue to come forward. By using our podcasts, our weekly updates, and website to share opportunities for this type of work, other members may find something that speaks to them and our community will be strengthened. Good people are doing amazing work every day and should be celebrated.

Our members volunteer on local school boards, at soup kitchens, raise money for medical research, devote time to their local bench and bar organizations, coach all manner of sports, support the arts, and serve as leaders and role models in their local communities. All of these activities strengthen our IADC community. When you travel to any IADC meeting, after you ask a member where they practice and what type of law they practice, ask them about what they do outside of their offices and court. You will be amazed and inspired at the commitment and the humility.

Next month, we will enjoy the food, history, and culture of stunning old Québec City. In an effort to always do more in service of others, we will also be assembling snack packs for Le Pigeon Bleu, a charity that works to prevent food insecurity for local children. The charity is based in the shadow of the Château Frontenac. Ever mindful of how fortunate we are to be in this organization and able to give back, we wanted to continue our service to others in a very practical way. If you have time on Sunday afternoon, July 6, please join us to help put the packages of food items together for the children. This is a great way to meet other members. Please bring family and kids too. Look for more details on the website as the meeting date approaches.

Why IADC for me? IADC members are intellectually curious, grateful, and humble. It has been a gift to serve with all of you. Thank you for the opportunity.

Donna M. Lamontagne
IADC President, 2024-2025

ELECTION REMINDER

The Annual Meeting is an important event for the Association in many ways. One of the most critical is the election of new IADC Board of Directors members for the 2025-2026 year.

This year, we will fill positions for President-Elect, Vice President of Corporate, Treasurer-Elect, and three at-large Board members.

You may submit comments in one of two ways:

- In person. The Nominating Committee will be meeting in-person at the Annual Meeting in Québec. Any active IADC member can make a five-minute appointment to speak to the Committee. To make an in-person appointment, visit the IADC Registration Desk to sign-up.

CONGRATS WINNERS!

We received more than 80 nominations during the March Membership Madness campaign! Congratulations to Overall Winner: MedTech Marvels (Drug, Device and Biotechnology Committee) and our Small But Mighty Committee Winner:

Arbitrary Justice (International Arbitration Committee). To nominate someone yourself, fill out the quick form here.

- In writing. Comments can be submitted in writing by email to Nominating Committee Chair Andrew Chamberlin with copy to IADC Executive Director and CEO Mary Beth Kurzak in advance of the meeting. Emails are completely confidential and only shared with the Nominating Committee. Any comments by email must be submitted no later than 11:00 a.m. Eastern Daylight Time/10:00 a.m. Central Daylight Time on Wednesday, July 9.

The election information can be found here: 2025-2026 Election Information.

Lawyers for Civil Justice Leadership Updates

Molly Craig, (Hood Law Firm LLC, Charleston, SC USA), IADC's Past President, concluded her successful year as LCJ president in May. LCJ enjoyed a string of advocacy successes during her tenure as president:

- The Supreme Court approved new FRCP Rule 16.1 on MDL management and amendments to improve privilege logging flexibility, with adoption set for December 1.
- The Advisory Committee on Civil Rules moved forward with an examination of third-party litigation funding and possible disclosure rules. Concurrently, LCJ's Ask About TPLF initiative was launched.
- State initiatives launched in support of securing expert evidence rules aligned with amended FRE 702. Scores of federal cases were decided using the amended rule.
- Improved management of privacy and cyber security in litigation was kept at the forefront of issues before the Advisory Committee on Civil Rules, with a new Rule Suggestion filed in February.
- Progress on cost sharing in discovery continued, with the new rule proposals in state courts and LCJ programming on cost allocation strategies.
- LCJ led opposition to proposed rules on expanding remote testimony, and a proposed amendment to Rule 45, on expanded reach of subpoenas.
- Guidelines for commenting on judicial decisions and advocacy on judicial branch appropriations followed the launch of LCJ's Public Trust in the Courts Committee.

Congratulations to Molly! While she has completed her service as LCJ president, she will continue to serve on the Board executive committee. We also offer our congratulations to IADC Past President Tripp Haston (Bradley Arant Boult Cummings LLP, Birmingham, AL USA) who was elected LCJ Secretary.

LCJ Advocates for Improved Litigation Rules

Lawyers for Civil Justice is continuing to make progress on a wide range of rule initiatives, including third-party litigation funding (TPLF) disclosure and clarified expert evidence admission standards, while also addressing new rule procedural and evidence proposals that will be open for public comment beginning later this Summer.

Third-Party Litigation Funding Disclosure Rules Discussed

Clear, uniform national disclosure rules on the disclosure of TPLF have been sought by LCJ for over a decade. Last Fall, the Advisory Committee on Civil Rules agreed to form a subcommittee on the issue and at LCJ's Spring Meeting in May, members of the Advisory Committee joined LCJ members for a discussion focused on the impact of undisclosed TPLF on litigation and case management, and the need for clear, consistent rules to assist judges and parties in handling TPLF disclosure. LCJ will continue to engage with the Advisory Committee and its TPLF subcommittee on the issue.

In parallel, LCJ is encouraging corporate and defense counsel to "Ask About TPLF." This major LCJ initiative is focused on facilitating requests for TPLF disclosure in cases. LCJ and IADC encourage you to seek TPLF disclosure in your cases and to share your experience, regardless of outcome. You find resources at www.askabouttplf.com.

Improved Expert Evidence Admission Standards Progress

LCJ is making progress on federal implementation and state adoptions of amended FRE 702, which clarifies expert evidence witness admission standards. The Federal Circuit and Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals recently issued positive decisions applying the amended federal rule. Oklahoma became the sixth state to adopt amended FRE 702 standards, joining Arizona, Kentucky, Louisiana, Michigan, Ohio, and the U.S. Virgin Islands in adopting the rule. To learn more and to get involved in Rule 702 implementation efforts in your state, visit www.dontsaydaubert.com.

Standing Committee Approves New Rule Proposals for Public Comment

Several new packages of proposed federal procedural and evidentiary rules are set for public comment in August. The proposed new rules were approved by the Committee on Rules of Practice and Procedure (the "Standing Committee") on June 10th, and will be open for public comment for six months following their publication in August.

The public comment period will provide you with an opportunity to share your views on the proposed rule changes. Among the proposed rules approved for publication and comment by the Standing Committee is a new Federal Rule of Evidence 707, which would apply FRE 702 expert evidence standards to the introduction of AI-generated evidence. Also set to be published are changes to FRCP 41(a) on dismissal of claims, Rule 45(c) on subpoenas for remote testimony, FRCP 45(b)(1) on service of subpoenas, and Rule 7.1 on disclosures related to recusal.

To learn more about LCJ and its rules initiatives, visit www.lfcj.com. The IADC is a founding member of LCJ and works closely with LCJ to improve civil litigation efficiency and fairness.

These podcast episodes have dropped since our last issue. Listen here or wherever you listen to podcasts.

- Managing Burnout for Lawyers

- In this episode, Host Mollie Benedict (Tucker Ellis LLP) spoke with Shayna Cook (Goldman Ismail Tomaselli Brennan and Baum LLP) to talk about something all too common in the legal profession: burnout. Defined by exhaustion, loss of motivation, and a nagging sense that you're not doing a good job, burnout can feel like sinking into a hole—especially in high-stress work environments. Whether you're deep in the trenches or just looking for better balance, this conversation offers practical, compassionate strategies to help you navigate the pressure—and come out stronger.

- Judicial Systems Across the Globe: A View from Mexico

- In this episode, Host Cecilia Lahaye (Bird & Bird LLP) sat down with Manuel Moctezuma (Moctezuma Castro S. C.) to uncover the unique aspects of Mexico's legal system. As a civil law jurisdiction, Mexico does not have a discovery process but includes an evidentiary stage along with oral and final arguments. Manuel also unpacks a major judicial reform enacted last year at the constitutional level—starting this June, judges will be elected by popular vote. These changes are expected to reshape the judiciary. Join us as we dive into these key differences and explore how Mexico's legal system shapes justice.

- Noah's Arc Syndrome

- On this episode of IADC Speaks, Host Mollie Benedict (Tucker Ellis LLP) chatted with guests Bernadette Catalana (Thompson, Coe, Cousins & Irons, LLP) and Heidi Friedman (Thompson Hine LLP) to explore “Noah’s Arc Syndrome”—the experience of navigating singlehood in a world that often feels built for couples. Together, they share their personal journeys from being in relationships to becoming single, and how that shift shaped their identities, outlooks, and resilience.

- From Counsel to Coach: A Lawyer’s Journey into Executive Coaching

- In this episode, Host Chris Berdy (Butler Snow LLP) sat down with Matt Cairns (Textron Inc.), a seasoned legal professional with more than 35 years of experience, who recently expanded his career into executive coaching. Still practicing in-house law, Matt earned his coaching certification in 2023 with one goal in mind: helping others succeed. Together, they explore what leadership and performance coaching really is, how coaching differs from therapy, and why the process is rooted in partnership, creativity, and potential.

- Judicial Systems Across the Globe: A View from Singapore

- In this episode, Host Cecilia Lahaye (Bird & Bird LLP) sat down with Siraj Omar, SC (Siraj Omar LLC) to uncover the unique aspects of Singapore’s legal system. Singapore has a common law legal system, rooted in its English tradition. Siraj provides an overview of the various types of court, including the unique and fascinating international commercial court where parties from different locations could ask to have their dispute resolved. Singapore is well-recognized as an international arbitration hub, and Siraj shares why arbitration is such a big part of the Singapore legal system. Join us as we dive into these key differences and explore how Singapore’s legal system shapes justice.
