Bonnie Mayfield

Dykema Gossett PLLC

Bloomfield Hills, Michigan USA

bmayfield@dykema.com

Bonnie Mayfield, who is the Chair of the IADC Employment Law Committee and a member of the Dykema Gossett Litigation and Labor & Employment Law practice groups, is a first chair trial lawyer, who recently tried and won two different employment cases in Florida after she stepped in, on very short notice, for a colleague who could not attend either trial. Ms. Mayfield conducts internal investigations — including high profile and high stakes C-Suite investigations — for corporate clients and also regularly defends and advises clients on labor and employment matters, including discrimination, hybrid §301, retaliation, wage and hour, whistleblower, class action claims, and systemic investigations and litigation brought by the EEOC and other administrative agencies. Her recent C-Suite investigation of sexual harassment and discrimination claims helped repair the culture of the company, provided the witnesses with ample time to discuss their concerns, and resulted in the high profile, alleged harasser's voluntary resignation and not seeking severance. A noted speaker, Ms. Mayfield has co-presented in different venues, including the IADC Webinar “Sex Harassment: The Cause of Action, Investigation, and Confidential Settlement.”

Timothy B. Corcoran

Corcoran Consulting Group, LLC

Lawrenceville, New Jersey USA

tim@bringintim.com

Timothy Corcoran is a keynote speaker, consultant, author, and legal commentator. With deep experience spanning two decades as a corporate executive, he guides law firm and law department leaders through the profitable disruption of outdated business models.

Mr. Corcoran's confident and irreverent stage presence enables him to bring levity to topics of particular gravitas, while masterfully navigating tough discussions from a refreshing perspective. Audiences cite his simplification of complex concepts, a reduced learning curve, and actionable takeaways as key factors in catalyzing their change process.

As a change agent, Mr. Corcoran's focus is on helping law firms operationalize their strategy: profiting from experience through project management and process improvement; embracing profitable alternative fee arrangements; assessing and redesigning partner compensation plans; designing new financial metrics and dashboards; building or reorganizing an effective ecosystem; training current and future leaders; succession planning; refining business development skills; and launching new technology tools. He helps law departments embrace performance analytics, better hire and manage outside counsel, and ultimately improve business velocity.

He has seen it all and brings the full force of his experience and expertise to your particular problem. Between customized talks and strategic collaborations with other industry experts, including the Legal Lean Sigma Institute and The Tilt Institute, Mr. Corcoran offers a full suite of advisory services. His accolades include serving as 2014 President of the Legal Marketing Association, a Fellow and Trustee in the College of Law Practice Management, Committee Chair in the Association of Legal Administrators, and sought-after speaker and writer on topics related to the changing business of law. He also authors the widely read Corcoran's Business of Law blog.
