

Elaine Drager
Nokia
Murray Hill, New Jersey

Elaine Drager is part of the Nokia Legal & Compliance community, having originally joined Lucent Technologies, which merged with Alcatel forming Alcatel-Lucent, which was in turn acquired by Nokia. During the course of her career she has been responsible for nearly every aspect of intellectual property and antitrust matters in the context of a wide variety of corporate transactions. Elaine is a registered patent attorney who started out at Fish & Neave in New York City, and has been involved with clients in technical areas from semiconductors and consumer devices, to software, to optics, to cable and telecommunications technologies. She has a BS Electrical Engineering from Lehigh University and a JD from Duke University School of Law.

In her spare time, Elaine is the mother of 3 young adult daughters, and has mentored, counseled, and provided both solicited and unsolicited advice to dozens of young professionals in engineering and legal fields. She has been a soccer coach, Girl Scout leader, and school volunteer, and serves on the Advisory Board of the Gibbons Institute of Law Science & Technology of Seton Hall Law School. In the past, she was also a member of the Intellectual Property Advisory Committee for the United States District Court for the District of Delaware. In her spare time, Elaine enjoys travel, horseback riding, and watching Duke Basketball! She lives in Princeton Junction, NJ with her family and pets.