

Marlo Carruth

Marlo Carruth is currently Assistant Chief Counsel for The Walt Disney Studios where she has worked for 17 years, beginning in the home video division and now for the studio in the distribution group. She negotiates and drafts domestic and international content licensing and acquisitions agreements for the in-home entertainment division, including both physical and digital movie and television rights. She is also responsible for overseeing the domestic and international physical replication and distribution agreements for the division and negotiating and drafting production agreements for original/bonus content on in-home entertainment product.

Marlo graduated from Stanford University where she played on the tennis team and UCLA School of Law where she was Order of the Coif and 10th in her graduating class. She is a member of the California Bar.