

Stuart Clark

Stuart Clark has been intimately involved in the development of Australian product liability and class action jurisprudence for 30 years. He has acted in some of Australia's most high-profile class actions, including complex product liability and economic loss-based class actions. He has a particular interest in the defence of complex multi-jurisdictional litigation. Stuart also provides crisis management advice to a number of clients, both government and commercial. His work with clients throughout the US and Europe has provided him with a deep understanding of the challenges involved in global litigation.

He write and lectures extensively, both in Australia and overseas, in relation to class actions and complex litigation. His work in this field led to his appointment in 2010 as Adjunct Professor at Macquarie University Law School.

Stuart is a former Director of both the IADC and the Foundation of the IADC. He was elected as a Fellow of the Australian Academy of Law in 2014 and appointed a Member of the Order of Australia in 2015. In 2016 he served as President of the Law Council of Australia, the peak representative body of the Australian legal profession.
