

Jonathan Monheit
Microsoft Corp.
Redmond, Washington

Jonathan Monheit began the first nine years of his legal career as a commercial litigator in Maryland before becoming an eDiscovery Professional. He is currently working in Microsoft's Litigation, Competition & Compliance Group as part of a team managing eDiscovery for complex litigation and Government Investigations. Jonathan has played an active role working within the Litigation group at Microsoft to mitigate the privacy risks associated with cross-border eDiscovery in the run-up to GDPR, including drafting model Protective Orders to be used as a baseline in negotiations by In-house and Outside Counsel on Microsoft cases, that include strong privacy provisions to address GDPR concerns when EU Custodians are involved. Jonathan is also responsible for standardizing the document review process Microsoft uses with Outside Counsel and vendors. Before joining Microsoft, Jonathan was the VP of eDiscovery Services at Hudson Legal, where he oversaw a team of Project Managers in the US and the UK. Over the years Jonathan has directly or indirectly overseen management of hundreds of document reviews for variety of large companies across numerous industries in the US and UK.
